

WESTERLY STREET IMPROVEMENTS

Topic of Rainy Day Discussion—St. Michael's Boys Return From Camp—William W. Hiscox's Case Against P. H. Opie Company Continued Two Weeks—Judgment For Plaintiff in Pawcatuck Trespass Suit.

With prospective public buildings to add to the beauty of the civic center of Westerly, the matter of improving the street surface is the subject of serious discussion. At present the condition is not in keeping even with present surroundings. The road is a patchwork of block paving and macadam, and poor samples of each. One prominent in the doing of the town council, in talking of the existing conditions, Friday afternoon, said:

"It's about time something was done to improve the street conditions in Dixie square and vicinity and at the right time I'll take the matter up at a meeting of the town council. I am in favor of a thorough rebuilding of Broad street for its full length, from the state line on the bridge to Elm street, and have it up to date. Properly paved the street would have needed wider traffic space, as the old-fashioned cobblestone gutters would be eliminated.

"On the quiet, I am in favor of paving the street with vitrified brick, but were I to advocate that material it would prove my political Waterloo in this granite town, where many are always boosting for the native product, under the belief that there is nothing as good as Westerly granite, for paving for building or for monumental work. But, just the same, I'm satisfied that vitrified brick would make a prettier street, more even surfaced than granite blocks, and almost as lasting.

"But it would be classed as treason, almost, to talk of vitrified brick as preferable to granite, so when the matter is brought up in the council, as a matter of political policy I'll talk for the granite pavement. I'll favor using a block half the size of the present, to be laid in cement on an even concrete foundation, and grouted with liquid cement, after the style of the paving recently laid in Bank street, New London. Or, perhaps, in favor of those even smaller granite blocks, which were suggested for use in paving the Westerly section of the Broad street bridge about three years ago, but which was never made effective.

"As a strenghener to the paving plan, I'll remind the council that the cost of paving to the town would be comparatively small as a great part of the street is occupied by trolley car tracks, and that the trolley companies would share the greater part of the expense."

Rev. Dr. John Neale with his battalion of boys of the Junior Holy Name society, returned Friday afternoon from Camp St. Michael, near Lake Wyassup, in North Stonington, from a three days' encampment. The boys report a most pleasurable trip and thorough enjoyment of camp life and praise enthusiastically the successful efforts of Dr. Neale for the success of the outing.

In order to add interest to the camp and to have semblance of discipline, the boys were divided into four companies, with a captain for each and who was responsible for the action of the boys of his command to Dr. Neale, and disobedience of orders resulted in courtmartial, accompanied by some minor penalty. The captains were James McElroy, Leo Cella, William Leary and Edwin Higgins.

The boys enjoyed all kinds of field sports and each day were interested in an instructive talk by Dr. Neale on the methods and pleasures of out of door life, with practical illustrations of necessity being the mother of invention. Among other things he taught the boys how to make their camp candlesticks with white birch bark.

A feature of the camp was the baseball game between teams representing the First and Second Infantry, the "First" winning the series of games. There were daily concerts by a sextette composed of William Anderson, Edwin Higgins, Leo Cella, Michael Spellman, Frank O'Neil, Richard Lawton and Eugene O'Neil, the selections in the main having a chorus familiar to all the boys in camp and sung in a way that only boys on an outing can sing. From the opening to the close of camp, the boys were given freedom to enjoy themselves within liberal limitations of good behavior. Dr. Neale declares that it would be difficult to find a better behaved lot of boys.

At Friday's session of the Third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams, a case was entered by William W.

Before the Philadelphia pigs became accustomed to their pen on the Griscom property at Watch Hill, there was such a protest against the establishment of a piggery in that fashionable colony that the pigs were removed to a place far distant. When the colonists read of the presence of the pigs, there was vigorous protest and reference made to the porcine cheek in creating a nuisance that would not be tolerated even in communities that are not very well regulated. The protest was so pointed that the pigs were removed before a meeting of the Watch Hill Improvement society could be legally called. The owners of the pigs are one of the wealthiest families owning property at Watch Hill.
